

DAY IN DAVENPORT

Horse in Runaway.—Frightened at the antics of a piece of paper tossed by the wind, a horse belonging to the Mahr confectionery store broke from the hitching strap tied at the rear of the store, dashed west through the alley and collided with an automobile at Third and Main streets. No one was in the wagon at the time. The animal was standing quietly in the alley when the wind-tossed paper fell in front of him. He bolted, the hitching strap parting, and ran down the alley. The maddened horse turned up Main street to Third and again turned west. An automobile standing near the curb was struck by the heaving wagon. The horse was stopped near Harrison street by a passerby.

His father was a soldier and served with distinction in the Mexican war and was the only surviving Mexican soldier in Princeton township for many years and one of the very few who served in that war from Princeton township, Scott county, Iowa. Captain Walker was by trade a carpenter and joiner and as a workman excelled in his chosen occupation. Mr. Walker was also engaged in the undertaking business, operated a meat market, grain elevator, brick and tile works, blacksmith shop and operated a ferry between Princeton and Cordova. He also carried on an extensive farming operation, being a large owner of farm lands in Princeton township.

UPHEAVAL IS DUE IN THE CUE WORLD

Champion Hoppe's Defiance Causes Sutton to Declare for New Game.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 3.—There may soon be an upheaval in the billiard world. And from the midst of the ruction a brand new green cloth game is likely to appear. George Sutton, the Chicago expert, is the prophet to whom this forecast can be accredited. Should Willie Hoppe, the New York holder of the world's 18.2 ball line billiard championship, ignore the challenge issued by Sutton for a long distance match of at least 1,500 points, to be staged in Chicago following the title battle now slated for Feb. 3 in the east, the local wizard is determined to create a new style of game and title. The contract proposed by Sutton will be at 18.2 ball line for 3,000 points.

In discussing his suggested innovation Sutton asserted that the ruling now in vogue has nothing official behind it other than precedence. The practice now in force permits the champion to choose between a one night match of 500 points or three nights of 1,500. This custom Sutton affirms was originated by the Brunswick-Balck Collander company and has gone unchallenged until the present time.

If he is forced by the dictatorial attitude of Hoppe to sponsor the new 18.2 game over the longer distance Sutton intends meeting all comers in a series of battles, the winner to be declared the champion.

Sutton has mastered a new stroke upon which he will depend to wrest the title from Hoppe next month. He first noticed the stroke some years ago, when it was brought into prominence by a noted player, and worked steadily to develop it, but failed. Two months ago he suddenly discovered the key to the stroke and has been using it since with continued success.

Enroute to New York for the tilt with Hoppe in the Hotel Astor ballroom Feb. 3 Sutton will clash with Calvin Demarest in several exhibition contests, opening Jan. 12 at Indianapolis and appearing at Cleveland, Toledo, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. On the return journey the pair will play at Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland.

MRS. MARIA PECK CALLED BY DEATH

Brilliant Davenport Woman Succumbs at Home Following Illness.

FUNERAL HELD SUNDAY

Deceased Organized Kindergarten Work and Was National Figure in D. A. R. Councils.

Mrs. Maria Purdy Peck, one of the most distinguished women in Iowa and for years a leader in public movements in city and state, died at her home, "Oak Terrace," on Brady street between Seventh and Eighth, Davenport, her death comes as a distinct loss to the community. She was in the 74th year of her age.

Mrs. Peck's death, although it will be a surprise and shock to the general public, was not unexpected in her family circle and among her intimate friends. Last October she underwent a very delicate operation at St. Luke's hospital. She rallied from the effects of the operation, was taken home and was believed to be well on the road to recovery. But a month ago a relapse set in, since which time she has been in a critical condition. She had been unconscious four days, with short lucid periods, during which time she conversed with members of the family. Three days ago she stated she realized the inevitable and was prepared to die.

Widow of Dr. Peck. The deceased was the widow of the late Dr. Washington Freeman Peck, for many years one of the ablest and leading physicians in Iowa. It is to Dr. Peck that Iowa is indebted for the medical department of the State university, and it was he who was instrumental in the founding of Mercy hospital in Davenport under the charge of the Sisters of Mercy. Since her husband's death which occurred Dec. 12, 1891, she has given liberally of her wealth and time in following out plans that have been in perfect sympathy with his life work.

Mrs. Peck, whose maiden name was Marie Purdy, was born in West Butler, New York, Nov. 16, 1840. She was the daughter of Mr. Merritt and Amanda Sears Purdy and was the descendant of a number of prominent Revolutionary ancestry. She was united in marriage to Dr. Peck Sept. 5, 1865. Immediately they came to Davenport and here the husband at once became recognized as a physician and surgeon of rare genius. In later years Dr. Peck attributed much of his success to his wife, who always proved a loyal helpmeet.

A National Figure. Mrs. Peck had gained national prominence in the society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was one of the organizers and first regent of the Hannah Caldwell chapter of Davenport and for a number of years was regent for Iowa in the national organization.

She was one of the organizers and first president of the Davenport Woman's Club. She has given freely of her time and advice to this organization and its success is largely due to her wisdom and foresight in the management of its affairs.

She has been one of the most prominent workers in the state in the Federation of Women's clubs of Iowa. She was a member of the state child labor committee and for some time was president of the local biennial board of federated clubs.

For years Mrs. Peck was president of the old public library located at Sixth and Brady streets and continued with it until the present Carnegie free library was established here.

Organized Kindergarten. Mrs. Peck was also the organizer of the kindergarten department of the old People's Union mission when it was located on East Second street in a part of the city, where its work of uplift and the extended helping hand was most needed. The kindergarten was a branch of the mission work and she organized a board of managers and for the first two years personally paid all the expenses.

For 10 years Mrs. Peck was president of the Clonian club—one of the oldest and most exclusive literary organizations in Davenport. She was a member of the National Mayflower society, being a descendant from Stephen Hopkins. She was also a member of the society of Founders and Patriots.

As vice president-at-large of the National Council of Women of the United States, Mrs. Peck attended the quinquennial held in London in 1889, and again in Montreal in 1909. She has attended a number of the national gatherings of the D. A. R. held in Washington, D. C., and other cities. She was also a member of the Daughters of 1812.

Survivors and Funeral. Three children were born to Mrs. Peck, only one of whom survives. This is Jessie Peck Vollmer, wife of Hon. Henry Vollmer. The deceased children are Maudie and Robertson Peck. Two grand-children, Harry and Dorothea Vollmer, also survive.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the family home on Brady street. Friends are invited to the services at the home but interment which takes place at Oakdale cemetery will be private. Rev. J. W. Hopper of the Unitarian church will officiate.

WHY CRIP IS DANGEROUS.

It is an Epidemic Catarrhal Fever Caused by a Bacillus that Generally Leaves the Patient Weak After the Acute Stage has Passed.

Do not make the error of regarding grip as an exaggerated cold. There is a big difference between the two. Grip is an epidemic disease that poisons the vital organs. When a person has grip, the air passages are alive with millions of bacilli poisoning the blood. The infected person feels tired and exhausted.

It requires a good tonic to keep the body of the patient as strong as possible to counteract the effect of the poisons created by the grip bacillus. An expectorant tonic with some laxative qualities is the safest remedy. Such is Peruna. Beware especially of coal tar powders or tablets because they lessen the vitality of the patient.

There is no specific for the grip. Peruna has been used with good success in former grip epidemics. Indications point to the return of grip this winter.

BIG CATS AND CATNIP.

Leopard and Tiger Fairly Revealed in the Odorous Plant.

Some one at the Washington zoological park obtained the permission of the authorities to try the effect of catnip on the animals there. So far as known catnip does not grow in the native homes of these animals, and this was the first time they had ever smelled it.

The scent of the plant filled the whole place, and as soon as it reached the parrots' corner the two gruffly addressed the bird keeper. The catnip was set up a note that told fearfully on the nerves of all and made for that side of their cage, poking their heads and claws through it. When the catnip was brought near them they became nearly frantic. They were given some and devoured it, stem, leaf and blossom, with an eagerness that equaled the noise of their cries.

Next trial was made on an African leopard. Before the keepers had reached the front of the cage he had bounded from the shelf where he lay, apparently asleep, and stood expectant. A double handful of catnip was passed through to the door of the den. Never was the prey of this spotted African in his wild state pounced upon more eagerly, or with such absolute enjoyment. First the leopard ate a mouthful of the stuff, then lay flat on his back and wiggled through the green mass until his black spotted yellow hide was filled with the odor, just as you have seen a cat act when it receives some catnip.

Then he sat on a bunch of the catnip, caught a leaf laden stem up in either paw and rubbed his cheeks, chin, nose, eyes and head. He ate an additional mouthful or two and then jumped back to his shelf, where he lay the rest of the afternoon, the very picture of contentment.

In one tiger's cage there is a very young but fully grown animal. When this great, surly beast inhaled the first sniff of the catnip he began to mew like a kitten. Up to this time the soft note of his voice had been one which put the roar of the big maned lion near him to shame.

That vicious tiger fairly reveled in the liberal allowance of the plant which was thrust into his cage. He rolled about in it and played like a six-weeks-old kitten. He mewed and purred, tossed it about, ate it and, after getting about as liberal a dose as the leopard had, likewise jumped to his shelf and blinked lazily the rest of the day.—New York Herald.

SETTLEMENT HAWKS DEFEAT CAMBRIDGE

In one of the fastest games of basketball ever played between the Settlement Hawks of the West End and the Independent team of Cambridge, the former team won by the close score of 26 to 24. The game was fast throughout the first half ending with the score 19 to 5 in favor of Cambridge.

The second half opened with a rush, the Independents scoring the first goal and making the count 21 to 5 in their favor. From then on, however, the Hawks began a steady run throwing basket after basket and finally overhauling the big lead against them. When time was called the count stood 24 to 24. After eight more minutes of fast play, Arthur Swanson, star forward of the Hawks, threw an excellent long distance basket, winning the game for his team.

STORIES ABOUT STARS

Humorous and Serious Tales of the Ball Field.

In his day Nick Altrock was one of the greatest southpaws in the business. Pitchers with more stuff there were many, but few pitchers who could win with the consistency of Altrock. Nick always pitched with his head as well as his arm. He had a heart of oak and a motion to first base that kept the runner hugging the bag so closely that it was next to impossible to steal on him. To sum it all up, Altrock knew how to pitch. Pitchers with all kinds of stuff often fail, simply because they don't know how to pitch.

To the average fan of today Altrock means nothing as a player. Nick to him is purely some amusement for the antics of the coaching lines, and his comedy style of playing first base. They regard Altrock purely in the light of a baseball comedian. The public of course cannot be blamed for such an opinion, for it is only in the comedy roles now that Nick shows to advantage. Manager Griffith, however, carries Altrock for more than his coaching ability. There is no denying the fact that he added much in the development of Joe Boehlin, the sensational young southpaw. He has also been of much value in taking the rough edges off the other young pitchers.

Altrock during his entire career has always been a good fellow. He has perhaps been his worst enemy. Always willing to lend aid, always a free spender, always enjoying life,

Nick found it very easy to get rid of his bank roll. There are some players who if they had made as much money as Nick wouldn't need worry, but Nick will never rival any of the great capitalists. Perhaps nothing better illustrates this point than a remark Altrock was heard to make last summer, says a sport writer.

"Jack Egan and I were going down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington. We bumped into Nick, who joined us. After walking a few blocks we halted in front of a fortune telling place. A fat, greasy woman attired in a dress of a million colors, for two bits agreed to tell your future by reading your palm.

"Better drop in, Nick, and have her tell you your future," suggested Jack.

"Nothing doing, Jack," replied Nick. "My future is behind me." That remark made a deep impression on me. I recalled the days when Altrock was the idol of the South Side fans in Chicago, of the day he beat Mordecai Brown in the opening duel of the 1904 world's series. Nick was probably thinking of the same thing when, in tones touched with sadness, he remarked "My future is behind me."

SETTLEMENT GIRLS LOSE TO CAMBRIDGE TEAM

The West End Settlement girls' basketball team of Rock Island was defeated by the Cambridge girls' team at the association floor by a score of 19 to 0. The Settlement girls were unable to cope with their larger and stronger opponents and could not throw a single basket during the game. The Cambridge girls proved fast in field work and on the defensive.

MEXICAN GIRL SAYS SHE'S NOT WHITE SLAVE; DECLARES MINE OWNER SAVED HER

Miss Laura Leon.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 3.—Angry denial of a charge of violation of the Mann white slave act has been made by Donald Scott, a mine owner, and Miss Laura Leon, a Mexican girl, who fled with him from troubled Mexico. They were arrested in the residence of Scott's mother on complaint of Scott's wife, who says the girl is desperately in love with Scott.

"O, that is not so," the girl said. "Senior Scott saved my life by helping me out of Mexico, after my father had been killed by the rebels. My father's hacienda, near Topia, in the province of Durango, is overrun with bandits. They killed my father. My father was a member of the Social Defence with other big land owners, who want to protect their property. Because of his prominence in the fight and because I am his daughter they would have killed me but for Senior Scott."

That also is the way Scott tells the story. He says his wife left him because his mining interests forced him to live in Mexico until the country became too warm for him. He says the girl has been in his mother's care since arriving in Chicago.

"My wife left me in Mexico," Scott said when arraigned before United States Commissioner Lewis Mason and released on $5,000 bond. "She said she was coming here to get a divorce and I thought she had. I have been supporting her liberally all of the time. I have learned since that she obtained a decree of separate maintenance in October."
